11A. MARKET RESEARCH Attach supporting analysis, including results of sources-sought or request-for-information synopsis, J&A, etc. In accordance with FAR 19.501(c), it has been determined that, SERMC will not be able to set-aside this requirement for small business. The type of work being performed is Planned and Facility Maintenance (PM/FM). Market research was conducted during the period of 06 - 20 December 2019 six responses were received; three small businesses showed interest in this procurement: Colonna's Shipyards, Inc., Epsilon Systems Solutions, Inc. and LCE Life Cycle Engineering. While we did receive interest from three small businesses, we have not conducted a capacity review for the companies. The work to be accomplished is unique to U.S. Navy ships and is normally accomplished by active duty personnel. In this solicitation, the work will be accomplished by contracted personnel on Littoral Combatant Ships (LCS). The work requires specific tools and test equipment and will be accomplished in multiple locations on the East Coast. The planned maintenance is preventative in nature and is essential to the operation of every system on the ships. One of the responding small businesses has similar experience performed on an IDIQ contract, which is the predecessor to the current solicitation. This solicitation is the result of the lack of competition on that IDIQ contract. The second small business has similar experience on a single ship in San Diego and does not yet have a presence on the East Coast. The third small business does not have any experience accomplishing similar work. Because of the lack of significant experience in industry, setting this solicitation aside for small business creates an unacceptable level of risk. Therefore, the solicitation will be full and open competition.
